Air National Guard member Jack Teixeira appears in court as FBI reveals case against him

AP / Washington

The Biden administration is going to have a hard time explaining how the biggest US intelligence leak in a decade may have been committed by a 21-year-old airman whose - "cyber transport sysrole tems journevman" — required a high-school degree, a driver's license and up to 18 months of on-the-job-training. The FBI arrested Jack Teixeira, of Dighton, Massachusetts, on Thursday, with promise of a swift arraignment on Friday. Attorney General Merrick Garland said he was being held in connection with the "unauthorised removal. retention and transmission of classified national defence information.'

Billing records of an Internet social media platform and interviews with another user helped the FBI identify a Massachusetts Air National Guardsman as a suspect in the leak of highly classified military documents, according to court records unsealed on Friday. The new details came as Jack Teixeira, 21, appeared in court to face charges under the Espionage Act of unauthorised removal and retention of classified and national defence information.

A federal magistrate judge ordered him held until a de-

Teixeira was arrested by heavily armed tactical agents on Thursday following a weeklong criminal investigation into the disclosure of the government records, a breach that exposed to the world unvarnished secret assessments on the war in Ukraine, the capabilities and geopolitical interests of other nations and other national security issues He appeared in court on Friday in jail clothes for a

S Korea, US stage air drills involving B-52H bomber

WORLD13

MUMBAI | SATURDAY | APRIL 15, 2023 www.freepressjournal.in South Korea and the US held joint air drills, involving at least one B-52H strategic bomber, on Friday, Seoul's defence ministry said.

The South Korean Air Force mobilised its F-35A radar-evading fighters and F-15K jets for the drills, while the US side deployed F-16 fighters in addition to the bomber, according to the ministrv. It did not specify in which part of the Korean Peninsula the drills took place.

"It is assessed that (the drills) represented a closeknit, coordinated response demonstrating the powerful 'strength of the alliance' and the US will to provide extended deterrence against the recent series of North Korean provocations," the ministry said in a press release. The drills reaffirmed the capability to swiftly deploy US strategic assets to the Ko rean Peninsula as well as the allies' enhanced combined operational capabilities and interoperability, it added.

The ministry also said the allies will demonstrate "through action" their resolve not to accept any nuclear attack from the North by strengthening the frequency and intensity of the deployments of US strategic assets.

Strategic assets usually re fer to high-profile military assets, such as nuclear-powered aircraft carriers, submarines and strategic bombers

Tested solid-fuel ballistic missile, claims North Korea

Seoul: North Korea said on Friday it flight-tested a solid-fuel intercontinental ballistic missile for the first time, a possible breakthrough in its efforts to acquire a more powerful, harderto-detect weapon targeting the continental United States. North Korea's official Korean Central News Agency issued the report a day after the country's neighbours detected a launch of a long-range missile from near Pyongyang, which extended a run of weapons displays involving more than 100 missiles fired into the sea since the start of 2022. Thursday's test did not appear to demonstrate the weapon's full capacity, and it remains unclear how far North Korea has come in mastering technologies to ensure the warhead would withstand atmospheric reentry and accurately strike targets. Still, analysts said the test was likely a meaningful advance in North Korea's goal to build a nuclear arsenal that could directly threaten the United States. -AP
